PEER & COLLABORATOR EVALUATIONS (Selection)

What to say... Pure excellence, I loved your [course] videos! They capture attention, present the content very well, are easy to understand and follow, keep you engaged, and technically they are also excellent. The videos are entertaining and visually the graphics complement the content presentation very well. It's very positive that we don't see written text on the screen but rather hear your voice explaining what we see on the graphics. What you have done within the timeframe we had is excellent, and I want to emphasize that. Thank you again for your great work.

Ms Anahí Funes (Media Production Business & Finance, IU UAS, Germany, 2024)

Stefan's talk was not only informative but also engaging, offering valuable insights into the complexities of academic publishing. Throughout the talk, Stefan demonstrated a deep understanding of the challenges researchers face when selecting the right journal for their work. His practical tips and tools went beyond traditional library resources, providing attendees with actionable strategies to optimize their publishing journey. Stefan's professionalism, combined with his ability to communicate complex concepts clearly, made his talk a highlight of the event.

Dr Jayson De Vera (Assistant Professor of Science Education, Philippine Normal U, 2024)

There are few foreign speakers with such a profound understanding of China as Mr. Reindl, and few who can match his speaking talent. Although being concise, Mr. Reindl's talks are vibrant and engaging. His many practical examples and real-world applications are particularly spellbinding as he can draw from his own cross-cultural experiences from 10 years in China as well as from his work experience which spans Europe, Asia, and North America. His lecture is brisk, but the information is not too difficult to absorb.

Dr Zhu Fengyu (Director of Academic Affairs, Silkroad School, Renmin U of China, 2020)

China is a complex market and who better to help businesses navigate the cultural differences of the market than someone who lives them every day as Stefan Reindl does. Stefan shared first-hand knowledge of the market's online needs and interests – from accessing information on mobile devices to online payment preferences. He's a talented speaker that delivers information on technology trends without being too technical. Thanks to Stefan, everyone who attended the seminars understands what steps to take to help our Chinese travellers stay connected.
